Note the small print: Every computer is different. These instructions assume you are using the built-in Windows wireless configuration software to control your wireless card. If you are using a different version of the Windows operating system or another software package to manage your wireless card, you may need to reference the instructions that came with your card for information on how to associate your specific wireless card with the EmoryUnplugged wireless access points.

Before you begin: Make sure the date and time on your laptop is correct! Click on the network icon in the bottom right corner of the screen, then left-click on “Open Network and Sharing Center.”

1. Click on the option for EmoryUnplugged and then click Connect.

2. A Network Authentication window will popup. Enter your Emory NetID and password in the respective fields and click ‘OK’.

3. Click the ‘Connect’ button on the Windows Security Alert window.

4. You are finished!
